Name: Sawan
Roll no: 170005

User Stories: Programmable calculator Project 1 part 3

- As a Developer, I have to develop a function that will accept condition statements so that when user enters the condition statement, the program should process the result.

- As a Developer, I have to develop a function that will accept loop statements so that when user enters the loop statement, the program should process the result.

- As a Developer, I have to develop a function that will accept print statements so that when user enters the print statement, the program should process the result.

- As a Developer, I have to develop a function that will accept input statements so that when user enters the input statement, the program should ask the value from the user and store it.

- As a tester, I have to test each functionality according to requirements so that program should be error free.

- As a User, I have to enter print statements with " to print what I wanted. For ex: print "a"

- As a User, I have to enter print statements with space to print the value of variables. For ex: print a

- As a User, I have to enter input statements with space so that program can ask for input In text Area. For ex: input a